Many hear Gods word, but yet eat it not; as they do not eat material bread, who neither chew nor swsllow it, even if they hold it in their h mout s. Many hear Gods word from the preacher, but oo ii, back 151 Life is short, and without good fruit dry as hay understanding and reason are wedred! Our hearts are barren of devotion; we have obeyed the devil rather than God, and made the flesh our ruler. We need Gods speedful help. Pan Ill. The three deeds of penance shewed darkly by the pelican, night raven and sparrow. The pelicsn abides in deserts; the night crow in old walls; the sparrow in house euves. In the desert is no building; in old walls an imperfect, in the rooted house a perfect, building. Contrition signified by the peiioan; confession by the night crow; satisfaction by oo iii, buck ths sparrow. The peiican (says St Jerome to Praesidius), finding her young slain by a serpent, The sinner thus smiting himself, revives the good deeds lost by deadly sin, and is brought fi-om the prison of eternal death to new life. oolv The night crow or owl (says St Jerome) hides in the day, but when thej sun is down cometh out with a mourning cry, 154 PSALM Cll.
