Not illustrated. 1811 Excerpt: . . . quarrers or 288 The four methods here used are as follow: first by multiplying the inches together, -and dividing by 144, and c. The second work is performed decimally: the third method is by cross multiplication, and the last aud best is by practice. Any of these methods may be easily understood by the use of the arithmetical part of this Bookj except the method hy crosss multiplication, which may be thus explained: Rule. Under the multiplicand write the corresponding denominations of the multiplier. Multiply each term in the multiplicand, beginning at the lowest, by the feet in the multiplier, write each result under each respective term; carrying an unit for every 12, from each lower name to its next higher. Note. Feet multiplied by feet give feet: --Feet multiplied by inches give inches; but inches multiplied by inches give seconds. In the same way multiply all the terms of the multiplicand by the inches in the multiplier, writing the result of each term one place removed to the right hand of those ki the multiplicand. Do the same with the seconds in the multiplier, getting the result of each term two places removed to the right hand of those in the multiplicand. Thus in the examples I say, once 6 is 6, and once 12 is 12;--then with the 3 inches 1 say, 3 times 6 is 18, that is 6 and carry 1, (putting the 6 to the right hand of the line of...
